The Ayala Museum is an art and history museum located in the heart of the Makati Central Business District, Philippines.

The museum began as a vision of the artist Fernando Zobel in the 1950s. He dreamed of a museum dedicated to Philippine history. In 1967, a museum of Philippine history and iconography was established. Later, in 1974, 60 hand-carved dioramas showing milestones of Philippine history were completed. This project was led by Carlos Quirino, Ayala Museum’s first director, who later on became an awardee of the National Artist for Historical Literature in 1997. To this day, many Filipinos visit the Ayala Museum to enjoy and learn from the dioramas. (Did you know you can also visit the dioramas online via Google Arts & Culture? Simply search “Google Arts and Culture: Ayala Museum” to find out more!)

Apart from the dioramas, scale models of various ships that plied Philippine waters throughout history were also built. From pre-colonial boats, Chinese junks to Spanish galleons, these maritime vessels show a long history of trade, migration, and conquest in our archipelago.

Coming into the 21st century, the Ayala Museum’s collections have grown to include many awe-inspiring archeological artifacts. The exhibition, Gold of Ancestors: Pre-Colonial Treasures in the Philippines, is a testament to the Filipinos’ rich ancestry and inherent craftsmanship. Ayala Museum also features ninth-to-19th-century Asian trade ceramics from the Roberto T. Villanueva Foundation Collection in the exhibition A Millennium of Contact. There are many more to see inside the Ayala Museum, and while the building is currently under renovation, these collections are made available online.

History of the Diorama Experience of Philippine History

The Diorama Experience of Philippine History was one of the inaugural exhibitions of Ayala Museum in 1974. It was produced by a committee of historians and artists under the leadership of then museum director Carlos Quirino. The dioramas are designed to be a comprehensive visual approach to Philippine history. Each tableau presents the Philippine historical narrative by encapsulating extensive research on the events, architecture, costumes, technologies, and topographies of the times. History is made more meaningful with the sense of immediacy the presentation provides; the sense of “being there as it happens.”

The sixty dioramas were hand-carved by woodcarvers of Paete, Laguna from baticulin wood, the same type of wood used in making santos. They were assisted by craftsmen in painting the figurines, backdrops, and props.

What is a diorama?

A diorama is a 3D model of an important event that can be in different sizes. Dioramas are usually displayed in a museum to present an interpretation of what may have happened in the past.

The Philippine National Flag

Since the Proclamation of Independence in 1898 until present, the Philippine Flag is an important symbol of our freedom and sovereignty as a nation. Hence, it must be treated with reverence and respect.

- The sun’s 8 rays symbolize the first 8 provinces that rose up against Spain.
- The three stars originally represented Luzon, Visayas, and Panay. Today, the third star symbolizes Mindanao.
- Blue represents peace.
- Red represents patriotism and valor.

There are different ways on how to display the Philippine National Flag during times of peace and war in the country. Here are the proper ways to display it based on the Flag and Heraldic code of the Philippines.
